

Will Spain contribute EUR133 million to a battery production base?

Spain's Industry Minister Jordi Hereu said in October that Madrid will contribute EUR133 million to a planned battery production base operated by Stellantis and CATL. LFP batteries cost less than more energy-dense nickel cobalt manganese (NCM) ones. [CATL statement]

Does Spain have a battery factory?

Spain is a clear beneficiary of this mixed situation. Having its own battery factory with low-cost LFP cells is a real competitive advantage for the three Stellantis plants in Zaragoza, Vigo and Madrid - especially as Stellantis has already announced that it will build small electric cars based on the upcoming STLA Small platform in Spain.

Where are LFP batteries made?

The two companies are investing up to 4.1 billion euros in the factory for LFP battery cells in Zaragoza near an existing Stellantis plant. (UPDATE BELOW) The new LFP battery production plant from Stellantis and CATL is scheduled to go into operation at the end of 2026. The goal is an annual capacity of up to 50 GWh in a later expansion stage.

When will a large-scale battery plant open in Spain?

The first phase of the EUR4.1 billion ($4.3 billion) large-scale battery facility is expected to begin operation by the end of 2026 in the northeastern Spanish city of Zaragoza, with the deal set to close in 2025, pending regulatory approvals, the companies said in a statement.

Will CATL be a partner for LFP batteries in Spain?

In November 2023, the car manufacturer officially announced its partnership with CATL for LFP batteries in Europe, and Spain became the subject of focus when, in January 2024, CATL was also mentioned in the Spanish media as a likely project partner in the country.

Why is Europe trying to attract EV battery makers to Europe?

Europe has been seeking to attract EV battery makers to build factories in the region - home to car makers such as Volkswagen and Stellantis - as it tries to cut a reliance on Asia and win a green subsidies race with the United States. VOTE ABSTENTION
