

What is a solar cell?

A solar cell is a device that converts energy from the sun directly into electrical energy. A solar cell is a source of electricity which gets electrical energy from light energy. A solar cell generates electricity from light.

What is solar cell in Electrical Engineering?

solar cell in Electrical Engineering. A solar cell is a device that converts energy from the sun directly into electrical energy. A solar cell is a source of electricity which gets electrical energy from light energy. A solar cell generates electricity from light.

What are solar cells used for?

Assemblies of solar cells are used to make solar modules that generate electrical power from sunlight, as distinguished from a "solar thermal module" or "solar hot water panel". A solar array generates solar power using solar energy. Application of solar cells as an alternative energy source for vehicular applications is a growing industry.

What are the different types of solar cells?

Other possible solar cell types are organic solar cells, dye sensitized solar cells, perovskite solar cells, quantum dot solar cell etc. The illuminated side of a solar cell generally has a transparent conducting film for allowing light to enter into the active material and to collect the generated charge carriers.

How does a solar cell work?

A solar cell converts light into electricity. Most of the solar cell is photoactive, but the base only conducts electricity after it has been converted.

Can a thin solar cell turn a surface into an energy source?
