How will a storage facility be financed in Poland?

Only storage facilities with at least 4 MWh capacity will qualify for the funding, which will be allocated through tenders managed by the Polish government. Projects selected for support will be connected to the national grid and play a key role in balancing supply and demand as renewable energy increasingly feeds into the system.

What is the business case for large-scale energy storage in Poland?

The basis of the business case for large-scale storage in Poland will be the capacity market, which handed out 165 MW of contracts to battery projects last year, deliverable five years out, so starting 2027. However, some tweaks to the capacity market still need to be made to be more favourable to energy storage, Małkowiak said.

What is the electricity storage support scheme?

The electricity storage support scheme aims to facilitate the reduction of fossil fuel use and the increased penetration of renewable energy on the Polish grid. Systems with 4 MWh capacity or higher will be eligible, connected to either transmission or distribution networks at all voltage levels.

Is a 2023 capacity auction a big step forward for Polish energy storage?

It looks to be a big step forward for the Polish energy storage market, which is already advancing into a leading position among Central and Eastern European markets, driven forward by a 2023 capacity market auction in which 1.7 GW was awarded to energy storage bids.

Does Poland need energy storage?

Małkowiak told Energy-Storage.news the grid-scale energy storage market in Poland is at an inflection point thanks to the "enormous pace of renewable development" which now exceeds the UK's and the transmission system operator's (TSO) recognition that it will need energy storage.

How will a new energy scheme affect Poland?

The scheme will add at least 5.4 GWh of new capacity to Poland's electricity grid as the country adapts to the fluctuating outputs associated with renewable sources such as wind and solar. EU balances climate targets with minimising competition distortions
